

INCA BOY'S MUMMY, CENTURIES OLD, HIS SOUVENIR FROM PERU

Steamer Passenger's Treasure, a Genuine Antique, Comes In Duty Free.

When word spread on the United Fruit Company's pier at Burlington, East River, yesterday, that someone had "dug up" a mummy all the other inspectors knocked off and clustered around.

It was found in the baggage of Thomas G. Taylor, a passenger who had just landed from the steamer Almirante Taylor, who had come from Antofagasta, Chile, and is on his way to his home in Toronto, made no attempt to smuggle the mummy.

From a box about ten by twelve inches square was pulled the old, bringing to the view of the acting deputy collector, the acting deputy surveyor, the appraisers and the inspectors the ancient preserved body.

Mr. Taylor said he had obtained it in the mountains of Peru and that it was the body of an Inca boy probably twelve years old. Parts of the binding cloths are still attached, and it was evidently prepared with the head drawn to the knees.

Black hair, short and thick, is still attached to the head. Nearly as lustrous is the hair as though centuries had not passed since the Inca boy's death.

"I have undisputed proof of the great age of the mummy," said Mr. Taylor. All the customs authorities were satisfied that the specimen was a genuine "antique" under the new tariff law, and that as such the Canadian antiquarian was entitled to free entry on his prize.

MURPHY IS SAFE A WHILE.

Mr. Comptroller Herman Metz, who is back from Europe, is sure that Charles F. Murphy will remain leader of Tammany Hall for awhile. He said:

"Mr. Murphy is safe until next fall, when primaries will be held. If people would pay more attention to primary legislation before election and less to the party afterward, we would be better off. Why don't they go to the primaries and enroll if they want to get rid of an undesirable leader?"

Mr. Metz laughed at the suggestion that he might be made the party leader in Kings and indicated that those who were talking about such a possibility were not his best friends.

He said legislation against the railroads must stop, as the railroads are now unable to get money for improvements. He thinks, too, that the investigation of the money market should cease.
